

Jacoti Hearing Center App Enables At-Home Hearing Tests for AirPods and AirPods Pro

NEWS · November 22th, 2023

Users can now complete precise at-home hearing tests with wireless Apple earbuds. A recent peer-reviewed study confirms Jacoti Hearing Center's accuracy, marking a significant advancement in accessible hearing care.

Jacoti BV, a pioneer in hearing technology, is delighted to announce that the Jacoti Hearing Center app now seamlessly integrates with Apple AirPods and AirPods Pro. This compatibility empowers users to access highly reliable at-home hearing testing, providing results that are comparable to in-office audiometric testing.

Jacoti Hearing Center is not just an ordinary app; it is the result of rigorous scientific research. Notably, Jacoti Hearing Center adheres to medical device regulations in both Europe and the USA, ensuring its commitment to meeting the highest standards for accuracy. As a testament to its precision, a recently published paper in the American Journal of Audiology (AJA) showcases that the app offers reliable at-home hearing tests that stand on par with traditional in-office audiometric tests.

Supporting Apple AirPods and AirPods Pro ensures that users can benefit from these precise hearing tests. By conducting a hearing test based on a patented pure tone hearing test procedure (Jacoti DuoTone®), users can promptly receive results, which can then be transferred to the Apple Health app for their convenience.

Jacoti's commitment to advancing accessible hearing solutions while upholding scientific rigor is the driving force behind this integration.

"Jacoti is at the forefront of hearing technology, and our integration with Apple AirPods and AirPods Pro represents a significant milestone in our commitment to developing reliable hearing technologies," said Jacques Kinsbergen, CEO at Jacoti. "By providing at-home hearing testing backed by scientific research, we ensure that our users can confidently take control of their hearing wellbeing."
